

Kerri Hiam

In 1981, Army Reserve signaller Kerri Hiam of 126th Signal Squadron became the first woman to attempt selection, pass selection and be awarded a Green Beret.

Wikipedia

Kerri Hiam took place as commando regiment.

Kerri Hiam decided to leave the army in 1981

Then 1981, Signaller Kerri Hiam of the 126th Signal Squadron made history as the first woman to attempt and pass selection for the Australian Army Reserve 1st Commando Regiment.

Kerri Hiam broke significant gender barriers within the Australian army defence force by passing the arduous training proving women could meet the intense requirements.

Following her success awarded the green Barret.

All about Kerri Hiam